ONE SCHOOL, ONE BOOK

The teachers at F.N. Brown Elementary School get their students psyched to read as they perform a dance number to promote One School, One Book. The program is to encourage a reading experience where everyone (teachers, parents and children) reads the same book and participate in daily discussions, trivia and blog posts for three weeks (starting April 1st). This year's book is The Cricket in Times Square.

One School, One Book was supported by the efforts of Corisa Walker, the school librarian, and by the Verona Foundation for Educational Excellence (VFEE).
