

As the lead sponsor of the Harlem Wizard game on May 3rd in Verona, Dr. Jay Villani of Verona Spine & Wellness Center presented a donation to Superintendent of Schools Rui Dionisio and Athletic Director Gary Farishian. The event raised funds for The Verona Technology Fund which will support ongoing technology needs throughout the district. Other sponsors included: Adrenaline Athletic Performance Academy, Arctic Falls Beverages, CDW Technology, DCH Montclair Acura, Garthwaite Plumbing & Heating, Green Mountain Landscape Contractors, the McKeen Family at Jersey Embroidery, Kings Supermarkets, the Lakin family and the NBA, Learning Express, Rick Lodato Team at Berkshire Hathaway Home Services, Terminal Pizza, and Rich Williamson. In addition to these community partners, the event was made possible by teachers, staff, parents and students from each of Verona's six public schools. On this night of fun and fundraising, the students of Verona were the biggest winners.

Jay Villani, Rui Dionisio, And Gary Farishian

Rui Dionisio, Eric "Broadway" Jones of the Wizards, referees Scott Chesney and Matthew Malanga of Verona before the game.

Verona children warm-up With the Wizards before the game.

Verona children try to out-play Eric "Broadway" Jones on the court.